INTRODUCTION TO BIOLOGICAL ANTHROPOLOGY
Anth 170, Sect. 01, #9522, 3 credits
11:00 am-12:15 pm, TR, Merr 300
Dr. Frank Cuozzo

An introduction to the field of biological or physical anthropology. This course will provide a general background in human evolutionary biology.

INTRODUCTION TO CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY
Anth 171, 3 credits
Sect. 01, #9510, 11:00 am-12:15 pm, TR, Witmer 114, Dr. Mikulak
Sect. 02, #9533, 9:30-10:45 am, TR, Cor/Lar 302, Harrison-Uracher
Sect. 03, #9542, 3:30-4:45 pm, TR, Nurs 102, Dr. Mikulak
Sect. 04, #9526, Online, Angela Harrison-Uracher

Examination of diversity and similarities across contemporary world societies. Topics: fieldwork and ethno-graphic description; theoretical approaches; communication/human language; interrelationships between environment, technology, social and political organization and worldview; socio-cultural change; applied anthropology. Films and case studies illustrate intricacies of culture and how an anthropological perspective provides insights about our own society/culture.

INTRODUCTION TO ARCHAEOLOGY
Anth 172, Sect. 01, #9511, 3 credits
11:00 am-12:15 pm, TR, Cor/Lar 302
Dr. Elizabeth Scharf

This course looks at how we investigate past cultures using the artifacts that people have left behind. What questions do archaeologists ask about the past? How do archaeologists find and record archaeological sites? What field and laboratory techniques are used to collect evidence and gather data, and how do these methods work? How do we interpret and understand the past using archaeological hypotheses, explanations, models and theories? Case studies will be drawn from different regions, cultures, and time periods to illustrate course concepts.

INTRODUCTION TO FORENSIC ANTHROPOLOGY
Anth 270, Sect. 01, #9524, 3 credits
9:30-10:45 am, TR, Babck 206
Dr. Phoebe Stubblefield

Forensic anthropology is the study of skeletal remains in a medico-legal context for the purpose of identification and trauma analysis. This course covers the history of this field, its relevance to death investigation in the United States, and the theories and techniques applied to skeletal identification.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL LABORATORY METHODS
Anth 300, Sect. 01, #9544, 3 credits
9:30-10:45 am, TR, Babck 108
Dr. Melinda Leach

Prerequisites: Anth 172 and permission of instructor. A hands-on introduction to the basic processing, organizing and analytical techniques used in the archaeological laboratory. Excavated materials from prehistoric sites will be used for lab exercises and demonstrations. Includes lecture and lab.

PRIMATES
Anth 335, Sect. 01, #19996, 3 credits
12:30-1:45 pm, TR, Babck 206
Dr. Frank Cuozzo

A survey of the biology and behavior of the living primates, with a special emphasis on similarities and differences to humans.

“The purpose of anthropology is to make the world safe for human differences.”

Ruth Benedict
Anthropologist
1887-1948
ANALYSIS OF FORENSIC EVIDENCE
Anth 346, Sect. 01, #9530, 3 credits
3:00-5:30 pm, Tues, O’Kelly 366
Dr. Phoebe Stubblefield

Pre- or Corequisites: Anth 345; Forensic Science majors, Criminal Justice majors and minors, and Anthropology majors only, or instructor’s consent. Emphasis on the practical applications of the forensic sciences. Whenever possible and practical, hands-on exercises will reinforce course topics.

CULTURE THEORY
Anth 372, Sect. 01, #9546, 3 credits
3:00-4:15 pm, MW, Babck 108
Dr. Marcia Mikulak

Prerequisite: Anth 171. An overview of the ideas and approaches that have played a role in the development of anthropological studies of societies and cultures. Focus on the contributions of major figures in anthropology, in the past and at present, as well as current issues within the discipline.

WOMEN IN PREHISTORY
Anth 375, Sect. 01, #9547, 3 credits
10:00-10:50 am, MWF, Babck 108
Dr. Melinda Leach

This course will explore recent research that explicitly illuminates women’s roles, behaviors and ideologies in the ancient past, and will examine methodological and theoretical attempts to understand how gender can be retrieved from the archaeological record.

SENIOR CAPSTONE SEMINAR
Anth 480, Sect. 01, #9512, 3 credits
2:00-3:15 pm, TR, Babck 108
Dr. Elizabeth Scharf, Dr. Melinda Leach

Prerequisites: Senior major status and completion of two of the three method and theory requirements (cultural, archaeology, physical); or departmental permission. The seminar will examine current debates or an area of study involving two or more subfields of anthropology. The seminar will provide an opportunity for students to integrate knowledge and skills obtained in anthropology.

INDEPENDENT STUDIES
Anth 492, Sect. 1-8, 1-4 credits
check Schedule of Classes via CampusConnection

Consent of instructor. Independent research conducted under advisement with department faculty. Research is student originated and developed.

READINGS IN ANTHROPOLOGY
Anth 494, Sect. 1-8, 1-5 credits
check Schedule of Classes via CampusConnection

Prerequisites: consent of instructor. Designed for students who want instruction in subjects not covered adequately in usual course offerings. Special arrangements must be made with an instructor prior to registration.

FORENSIC SCIENCE INTERNSHIP
Anth 497, Sect. 01, #9525, 1-12 credits
Time TBA
Dr. Phoebe Stubblefield

Prerequisites: Jr or Sr status, satisfactory completion of Chem 122 and Biol 151, and instructor consent. Students may enroll in this course after they have secured an intern position in a law enforcement agency, crime laboratory or other institution providing procedural and/or analytical processing of evidence from criminal or civil proceedings.