

The River Runs through It

Jeremy Hautau

Artist's Statement

My name is Jeremy Hautau and I love to fish and enjoy the outdoors. I am originally from Southern California and came to North Dakota for an affordable education. Seven years later, I am in my final year of law school here and have found a great fishing spot in the meantime. Turtle River State Park is just outside of Grand Forks and provides an escape to nature with beautiful flowing rivers and sharp cliff edges. In this photo, I have captured the flow of the river in its natural and powerful state, and I hope you enjoy it as much as I do.

Jeremy Hautau is a third-year law student who is originally from Southern California. He enjoys the outdoors and fishing at Turtle River State Park, which is featured in his photograph published in this issue of Floodwall.
